Roger Zakheim | Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation and Institute
The Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation and Institute (RRPFI) is pleased to welcome you to the inaugural Age of Reagan conference. This gathering marks the fulfillment of President Reagan’s wish that the Reagan Presidential Library become a “dynamic intellectual forum where scholars interpret the past.”

The Age of Reagan conference represents the commitment of the RRPFI to stimulate and sustain research, writing, and teaching on the Reagan presidency in the broadest possible context. In this pursuit, RRPFI stresses fidelity to sources and methods. New sources of information on the Reagan administration will continue to become available. The archivists of the Reagan Library continue their diligent work on the nearly 50 percent of unprocessed records, while the private papers of key Reagan administration officials are now being made accessible at the Hoover Institution, the Roper Center, and other research facilities across the country. RRPFI strives to promote interdisciplinary methods and conversation, and you will find scholars from the fields of history, political science, sociology, film and communication studies, and more presenting their original findings on a broad range of the Reagan administration’s influences on American life and the international community.

We are honored to bestow the inaugural Reagan Book Prize upon Professor William Inboden for his book Peacemaker: Ronald Reagan, the Cold War, and the World on the Brink. In Peacemaker, Professor Inboden models a fidelity to sources and methods that provides both a deeper understanding of the Reagan presidency and a clear message of the Reagan administration’s importance for the contemporary world.

RRPFI encourages participants in the inaugural Age of Reagan conference to join us in building a community of experts who will help push the frontiers of scholarship on the 40th president and the times in which he lived. The Age of Reagan conference and our other scholarly initiatives, especially our postdoctoral fellowships, will be a consistent source of opportunities to the academic community for years to come.
